LOCAL BOY IS WOUNDED

First Mt. Sterling Boy Reported to Be Seriously Wounded in Far Away France

Mr. J. W. Henry received a message Monday afternoon from the department at Washington stating that his son Roland D. Henry had been seriously wounded on the western battle front in France. No other details or particulars were given. Our readers will recall reading a couple of most interesting letters from young Henry and will regret to learn that he is wounded. This young man is the first one from this county to be reported wounded in action. Roger Bunker lost his life when a German submarine sunk the vessel he was on several months ago. We are sure that the prayers of the entire community are for the recovery of this gallant soldier boy.

CAPT. NUNNELLEY

The Photogravure Section of Sunday's Courier Journal contained a good likeness of Capt. Brent Nunnelley and wife (nee Miss Alice Apperson) and their interesting children. The picture is entitled: "The Soldier's Last Farewell." Capt. Nunnelley has been ordered to France and will likely sail this week. Both Capt. and Mrs. Nunnelley were born and reared in this city and have many friends who will learn of his promotion with interest. So that they may have an opportunity to see the picture, we have placed it in the front window of our office.

SPEEDY ACTION URGED ON NEW DRAFT AGE BILL

With an urgent recommendation from Provost Marshal General Crowder that it be enacted without delay and a suggestion that September 5 next might be fixed as registration day for approximately 13,000,000 men throughout the country, the administration's man power bill requiring the registration for military service of all men between the ages of 18 and 45 years was introduced today in the Senate and House.

Unless immediate steps are taken to provide additional men, General Crowder said the weekly registration of men as they attain 21 years of age again will be necessary to fill the draft quotas after September 1, when only 100,000 of the 1918 registrants will be available. Upon the introduction of the bill Chairman Chamberlain announced that the Senate Military Committee would meet tomorrow to consider the bill. He said he did not think hearings would be necessary and only three or four days should be required to report the bill. Chairman Dent, of the House committee, said since only three members of his committee are in Washington, it was doubtful whether the bill could be acted upon before the House reconvened on August 19th.

The bill would amend the present selective service act so as to require registration of all men between 18 and 20 years and 32 and 45 inclusive. While the total number of men in the latter classes would total 10,028,973 General Crowder estimates the total number who would be eligible for Class 1, would only be 601,236, owing to exemptions for dependents or industrial and physical reasons. Between 18 and 20 years his estimates show that 3,171,771 would register, while 1,787,609 men would be eligible for Class 1.

BOARDS OF INSTRUCTION TO INSTRUCT DRAFTEES

Local draft boards have been authorized by Major Henry Blodde to select Boards of Instruction to instruct draftees prior to their call in the draft. The boards are to be composed of from three to six men according to the size of the town. Major Blodde suggested that a lawyer, a physician and a man who has had military training and experience be placed on the board.

Throughout the country the Council of National Defense, realizing that men who are to be selected to fight to preserve the freedom of the world should have some knowledge of the duties expected of them upon their entering military service, have arranged, in many places, special courses of instruction to enlighten the men of such questions.

Such a board has already been organized in Louisville.

Protest Marshal General Crowder in an order to Major Blodde said that in order that the movement may be coordinated, supervised and controlled in all its relations to the Selective Service system, the Board of Instruction should be under the authority of the local board and should serve to relieve the local board of all personal burden involved in the instruction.

Each Board of Instruction will perform its work by individual interview and group meetings with the selectees, by giving advice and instruction on all subjects that are necessary or useful to future soldiers, and by arranging for preparatory military drill and instruction where feasible.

BARBER HELD AT PARIS

If H. Howard, a barber in the employ of Cain Bros., of Paris, was arrested last week by Sheriff McCune and Deputy Sheriff Marshall on a charge of interfering with the draft; and pro-German utterances. Howard went to Paris about four months ago. He says he has a wife and child.

The authorities charge that for some time he has been advising the young men of his acquaintance not to enlist and that he was enlisted to keep them out of the draft. Recently he accepted a check for the sum of $50 from Russell Day, a young man of Paris, with the understanding that it was to keep Day from being drafted.

OPTIMISM

We believe in boys and girls, the men and women of a great tomorrow, that whatsoever the boy sooth, the man shall reap. We believe in the curse of ignorance, in the efficacy of schools, in the dignity of teaching, and the joy of serving another. We believe in wisdom as revealed in human lives as well as in the pages of a printed book; in lessons taught not so much precept as by example; in ability to work with the hands; in everything that makes life large and lovely. We believe in beauty in the school room, in the home in the daily life and out-of-doors. We believe in laughter, in all ideals and distant hopes that lure us on. We believe that every hour of every day we receive a just reward for all we do. We believe in the present opportunities, in the future and its promises, and in the divine joy of living.

Mr. Merchant, Try This

Not much stirring in summer, you say.

All right, try speeding up the good ship "Business" by the application of some real forceful, sales-producing advertising.

Summer offers as many opportunities to the progressive merchant as any other season.

People are just as ready to buy articles of utility, comfort and pleasure in summer as in winter. Perhaps more so.

Summer business lethargy is largely a product of the imagination inherited from fogies and fossils.

The business is there—definite, tangible, real. Go after it. You can get it if you use interesting, timely, summer appeals in the paper the people like to read, the

THE GOLDEN SWORD

Throughout the war the Kaiser has constantly laid great stress upon the efficiency of the German sword. With its vengeance he has in turn threatened all his opponents. Upon it he depends for the overcoming of all obstacles to his ambitions, the bringing of the world to its knees the gaining for Germany of a place in the sun, and the fixing of Kultur irreversibly upon all the vanquished.

And what with the maiming of women and children and old men, to say nothing of the running through of crying babies, it has been a busy weapon in the Hun hands.

But the German sword is destined to fail its Master. It will make him a lasting reputation for butchery. It has accomplished that already. It will leave behind it a shameful record of atrocities and little claim for mercy for its wielders, but in the end it will be beaten back and broken. It will cease forever to be a plaything for the mad war lord.

For America is forgoing today for her champions in the field a golden sword of irresistible might. A sword against which the merciless German implement of murder and rapine will be blunted and dulled and broken for all time.

And that sword is the Liberty Loan, the war fund of America and if need be of her allies.

And into its temper, into its strength is going the determined spirit of millions of thoroughly aroused lovers of liberty and right and truth. The millions who refuse longer to see all that democracy stands for outraged and trampled into the earth by Prussianism ruthlessness.

Put your contribution into the crucible. Do your part in forging freedom's falchion that will blaze eternally down the ages the path of liberty and justice for all the world. Play a free man's part while there is yet time.

U. S. PRESSING NEED FOR CAVALRY HORSES

Not Only For Immediate War Requirements, But For the Future.

Washington, D. C. July 8.—The task of horsing Uncle Sam's troopers is one of the problems of the day. It is not alone a matter of supplying a sufficient number of remounts for the cavalry arm of the service for present day needs. The question of a reserve of the proper type for the future hulks large in the foreground. Col. John S. Fair of the Quartermaster Corps has this most important work in hand for the Federal Government. Col. Fair is in intimate touch with horse conditions throughout the United States, and no man speaks with greater knowledge of the country's needs in the matter of riding horse type. He realizes that it is from the quick, active families of which the thoroughbred standard bred and Morgan are representatives, that the remount supply must be drawn. Col. Fair's plan for an accelerated campaign of remount production should carry weight with breeders in every part of the Union and make them eager to assist the Government. "I think," said he today, "that we were all beguiled into a feeling of security by the census of 1910, which announced that there were 22,000,000 horses in the United States. It was not until we were at war ourselves that the fact struck home that a very large proportion of these were draught breeds and that cavalry remount material was exceedingly scarce. Transport and gun horses we have in abundance, thanks to the importation of Percheron and other draught breeds, but in the matter of the riding horse, aimless and purposeless breeding outside of a few regions has reduced our standard to mediocrity. There has not been that systematic effort in horse production which is a feature of the economic development of most foreign governments, notably that of France which is generally recognized as a model for the world. The only helpful influence I know of that has been constant is that exercised by the breeding bureau of the Jockey Club in New York State and a similar organization on more restricted lines in Kentucky.

"The only light horse families," resumed Col. Fair, "that have been produced systematically in the United States for a specific purpose are the thoroughbred or standard bred trotter, and these have been developed for racing purposes. It is fortunate for this country that this should have been done, as these animals furnish an admirable foundation upon which to build our war horse structure. Both have been brought to their high state of perfection through breeding and racing tests, and in the process of evolution through which they have passed the weak have fallen by the way side. Nature in every breeding venture gives a certain proportion of failures. These trials of speed have developed the heart and lung power of the animals taking part in them. We will therefore not have to breed those qualities into the riding horse of the future if we follow the lines which success has blazed for our guidance. I am therefore greatly in favor of the breeding activities for the production of the thoroughbred, as this is the line upon which we hope to build a type of cavalry horse.

"Of the foreign nations now at war," resumed Col. Fair, "England was the only country that had not a well grounded plan for cavalry remount production. Her troopers were horsed largely from the racecourse and the hunting field, and these furnished the 170,000 head in the emergency following the mobilization. Today through the generosity of Col. Hall Walker she has her own breeding studs under the control of an export and a British officer told me a few days ago that the work was progressing famously.

The Race Course the Indispensable Test.

The sires which are expected to keep up the high standard of excellence must prove their right to reproduce themselves. They are tested for speed, courage, soundness and bottom. This is the same method which is in vogue in France and other Continental countries.

"There seems to be an idea in some portions of the United States that mares can not be worked prior to motherhood and for some time after the foals have been born. Visitors to France and rural England find colts following their dams about the fields as the matrons help to till the soil or garner the harvest. Moderate work is beneficial for mother and offspring.

"Another matter upon which the farmer should be enlightened is that breeding operations may be carried into the autumn, when most of the year's work has been concluded. If mother and foal are well nurtured and warmly housed growth will be rapid, and in some instances as yearlings there will be little difference between late and early foals. When our cavalry regiments return from overseas they will have to be rehorsed.

A Patriotic Enterprise.

"The breeding of cavalry remounts, therefore, is a matter of patriotic endeavor, and every man who has a mare of the proper type should regard it as a duty to mate her this year. I understand that the New York State Constabulary is doing yeoman service in this respect and that horse breeding in the Empire State has been greatly stimulated through its co-operation with the farmers.

"Early in the war when Russia made her great offensive and penetrated East Prussia," said Col. Fair in conclusion, "the announcement was made that Germany deplored the loss of 20,000 choice mares from one of its most famous breeding studs more than any other misfortune connected with the campaign. I am ready to subscribe to the sentiment that such a number of the proper type of mares would be invaluable to us today. To Germany whose horse wastage is greater than that of any other country, they would be priceless. The Jockey Club, its chairman, Major August Belmont, F. Ambrose Clark, Henry T. Oxnard and many others have donated or loaned to the Government for a term of years horses of the type to benefit the movement."

Horses of Thoroughbred Type the Best.

Lieut. Col. M. C. Bristol is another member of the Government remount household who is a believer in thoroughbred blood in the trooper's mount. Col. Bristol has had much to do with the selection of the stallions which have been inaugurated at Front Royal, Va., and Forts Reno and Keogh in Oklahoma and Montana, respectively. He and those working under his supervision have been extremely careful in making their selections. No unsound or bad tempered animals have been accepted, and whenever a horse was found with a poor racing record he was preferred to another of equal merit in all other respects. New Yorkers had an opportunity during the recent Belmont Park meeting to see some of them when Light Arms, Saratoga, Roly, Achievement and other horses donated by the Jockey Club's breeding bureau and individuals were exhibited on the stretch.

Farmers Co-operation Essential.

In discussing the Government's remount plan in general, Col. Bristol said:

"There was a disposition at first on the part of some to think that we were engaging in the breeding business in opposition to the farmer. Nothing could be further from the truth. We have no desire to antagonize the farmer in his breeding ventures. As a matter of fact we are laying the foundation for a plan which will be of untold benefit to the farmers and horse breeders of the Union. It is our idea to breed stallions at our depots which will be distributed to the farmers free of any obligation. There will be no service fee and every aid will be given to stimulate the production of the proper type of remount without any strings to the proposition.

"I hope that there will be an increased interest in the racing, horse show and hunting activities of the country, as all of this makes for the development of the type of horse we want."

THE ALFALFA CROP

Having just read the article in the Herald in the Bluegrass edition of July 29th, "On Alfalfa" and having experimented with alfalfa some I want to give my experience in order to encourage the growing of the crop. In the main the article referred to is correct but I differ as to time of sowing and the preparation of the soil. You don't want to get the impression that unless you have your ground like an onion bed you can't get a stand of alfalfa, or that your ground must be turned and harrowed several times to have in best of condition and have the weeds thoroughly killed out. Of course this kind of preparation is fine for it if you can afford to lose a crop of wheat or corn in order to secure an alfalfa stand. My method of inoculation is to sow about one fourth alfalfa seed with my red clover or the ground I use for my meadows thus securing a light stand of alfalfa which will give the necessary inoculation so that at any future time you want to sow all alfalfa your ground is filled with the needed bacteria. By this method you can tell what portions of your ground is suited to the growth of the crop.

I have sown this year about 30 acres to alfalfa and have secured a good stand on all the ground, sowing nearly all of my wheat land. Red clover being $22.50 per bushel, and alfalfa $14.50 it seemed to me like it was the proper time to sow all in alfalfa.

Last fall I prepared my ground for wheat with ratalan harrow sowing 1 1/4 bushels of wheat then the latter half of March began sowing alfalfa about 10 lbs. per acre which I think with a fair season will make a plenty as a plant to the square foot after the first season will make a good crop of hay, as it stools out wonderfully.

This seed was all put in with an alfalfa seed drill, which I think is the only safe way to sow it, as where you sow it with hand sower it don't get in the ground deep enough.

PREWITT & HOWELL

If your ground is suited to alfalfa you should be able to get as good stand of alfalfa as red clover and a whole lot more and better hay.

On my last year sowing I have taken 2 crops will cut again about August 20th, then about Oct. 1st, this 5 acre field lies on the Spencer pipe and can be seen from the road.

A part of the same boundary I had in alfalfa several years ago when I plowed it raised 2 crops of tobacco and 2 crops of corn one of wheat and it seems as good as before I sowed the first crop.

I think I will be able to get as much hay from this 5 acres this year as I would get from 20 acres of red clover.

Try for yourself a small boundary this next year, don't sow too much wheat on this boundary so as to smother it out.

Will be glad to answer any question that I can over the phone and help you to get a start.

A MESSAGE OF GOOD CHEER

The almost unanimous returns in Saturday's primary were meant by the Democrats of Kentucky as a message of good cheer to our senior Senator, Hon. Ollie M. James, now on a bed of pain at a Baltimore hospital. That he is on his death bed, many believe, and the belief that his intimate friends were swindled before the primary and yet are, to tell his real condition, is very general.

Even the supporters of Mr. James, who want to see him win the game right, he is failing for his life. Especially is the Democratic side of the state, whom he has served so faithfully and well in the years of '07 and '08 at Washington, glad that he need be spared. They know he has given the party to the State, and of N. Webster, who had a few doubts the ability of Mr. A. G. Sproul, who has it generally conceded that should Mr. James be forced to resign from the Senate, the State Committee will name Mr. Sproul to his seat. That the friends of Democracy, having no objection to Mr. James, did not participate in the primary Saturday, not desiring to be blamed for it in the event of the election, may go far to confirm the members of the State Committee of the unnecessary danger that Mr. Sproul's election would bring the party to.

If the chairman of the Senate James' retirement wants to eliminate all question of doubt about the result in November, why not select some men of advanced ability and integrity upon whom all Democrats and friends of Independence can count, such as Judge Albie W. Young, Judge John P. Humphrey, Judge R. W. Brigham or Hon. Swager Sherley?

IRVIN JACKSON WRITES HOME They sent a bunch of follows to the Camp Crane, N.Y., of embarkation and I expect that they are now on their way to France.

I have exchanged my place of board, being a man now in command, from A. to B. It is the best camp that I have seen. The barracks are large, the surroundings are pretty, and we get plenty to eat. It used to be an obstacle training camp, but everything is fixed just right. Last night and over and over again I heard it in telephone we used to have that certain and the next would be so much that you could not get the best news of your loved ones and bedding would be awful and so on. Getting a telephone, it was impossible. You can get them here though, and I am sure you will pay for it. I am trying to get transferred again just to the time of getting the pay and I think that I am going to be passed in one of the other hospital groups here but you all know for sure for a few days. If I am not put in that I guess that I will go to the evacuation hospital group, which is just a stone's throw of the base.

The way they run the evacuation hospital is this: First is the regimental dressing station. Here the men go out on the living line and bring in the wounded. Then is the field hospital where those that are not very seriously wounded are brought for treatment. Then the evacuation in which the wounded are carefully examined, treated and sent to the base.

The people here are great. You see flags everywhere and at all the stations they bring out things for the soldiers to eat. You can talk about southern hospitality if you want to, but the North has it all over them. They hardly notice a soldier in Chattanooga. I do not see why they wanted to change me around, but I am glad of it. I was scheduled to stay there but an order came in to clear the camp and get ready for new men and they had to send us all out and in different directions. Got to see Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia on my way up.

MOST WILLS ARE UPHELD

Statistics Show That Juries Are Generally Willing to Maintain Validity of Legal Testaments.

The right to regulate what shall be done with one's property after death remains substantially intact, and that, too, notwithstanding the popular impression that the intention of testators is very easily frustrated. It is a current belief, which derives color from the sensational contexts of which we read in the newspapers, that a great many wills are broken. Robert Great writes in Scribner's. But, though the attack of disappointed or greedy relatives are numerous, the contrary is true, according to the records of the largest county of the state with which I am most familiar and where pecuniary tendencies against testators are well developed. These records show a steady average of rather less than 1 per cent of wills disallowed during the last ten years, a result which is made more remarkable by the reminder that some of these were set aside because of defective execution instead of mental incapacity and undue influence of the maker, evidently urged by the reporter. The statistics for the same period show a yearly average of less than 1 per cent of wills compromised—that is, where the legatees and next of kin agree to split their differences with the sanction of the court. These figures, which are undoubtedly indicative of conditions elsewhere, reveal a disposition on the part of juries to uphold the validity of legal testaments and tend to contradict the notion of the "man in the street" that his last wishes are apt to be disregarded.

LIGHT ON HISTORIC QUESTION

Testimony Seems to Prove Napoleon Had Not Planned to March on St. Petersburg.

Old correspondence has been found in England which throws much light on the much-mooted question as to whether Napoleon planned a march on St. Petersburg. The correspondence reads: "When Count Simeon met Napoleon in Dresden after the emperor's return from Russia in a sorry, one-horse sledge—De Simeon was then prime minister of the kingdom of Westphalia, and came to inquire after his own sovereign, King Jerome—Napoleon said to him: 'You probably think I ought to have added to the collection of cudgels of the Great Frederick which I brought from Potsdam by getting one of Peter the Great, which are kept in St. Petersburg. But I never had the stomach to undertake the invasion of that mad peninsula, most of it morass and water. Besides I had become interested in the problems of Russian civil administration; that kept me in Moscow and kept me too long. Perhaps if I had pushed on I would not be here now.'

MANY SWEET THINGS IN LIFE.

There are always so many beautiful things around us and before us that we miss. If we would only open our hearts and minds to them how different our outlook upon life might be.

Especially now with the weight of the world war pressing more and more upon us, do we need to look for all that is beautiful and good, and if we would do so we would find ourselves less fretful of existence, less intent upon our own ills and troubles and we might be able to say with the gypsy man in Lavengro:

"Life is sweet, brother. . . .

There's day and night, brother, both sweet things; sun, moon and stars, all sweet things; there's likewise a wind on the heath."—Exchange.

THAT'S DIFFERENT.

"So you made the mistake of falling in love with the farmerette?"

"Why do you speak of the affair as a mistake?"

RED CROSS KNITTING

An appeal is made to the knitters of socks and sweaters to assist in getting ready by the first of September the required number of the articles of apparel asked for by the Lake Division of the Red Cross. They must be knitted and sent off by that time so that our soldiers and sailors may have them when the weather begins to get cold.

Some have been heard to say that it is too warm to knit now but if that is considered our men who are fighting might suffer severely with the cold before the sweaters and socks get to them. A powder puff in the knitting bag may be used on the hands as the knitting progresses during the hot weather.

In the Literary Digest quite recently an article appeared saying the government had asked the knitters to stop using the yarn on account of the shortage of wool and that the knitted garments were not liked by the soldiers. This statement was entirely without foundation and is supposed to be German propaganda as at that time the American Red Cross was sending out wool to the chapters to be used by the hand knitters. The Lake Division News published a note saying this article in the Literary Digest had given the Red Cross no end of trouble. No one knows why it was published, but it worried all the women who read it and the Equal Rights Red Cross Circle of Lexington wrote to headquarters about it. Following is the reply received by the committee who wrote the letter:

My Dear Madam:

This will acknowledge receipt of your letter regarding the article appearing in Literary Digest of July 6th on the subject of hand knitting.

Before the inception of the Red Cross program of hand knitting on a large scale in the summer of 1917, the entire question received careful and thoughtful investigation. Changing conditions which might affect the demand for our various standard knitted articles are at all times carefully followed with a consequent increase in production of the individual article so affected.

All knowledge that we have of the situation both here and abroad leaves us firmly convinced that hand knitting, properly regulated, is valuable and that the wool in our knitted garments is not wasted but, so used, provides an effective means of relief. We expect in the near future to present through the press the review of the hand knitting situation with the reasons in general on which our present policy is based.

Public Service Reserve—Kentucky's Quota 4,140.

Four thousand, one hundred and forty men is Kentucky's quota in the labor recruiting campaign of the United States public service reserve, according to a telegram from Washington, received last week by Dr. Frank L. McVey, State director of the reserve. During the month all classes of men in Kentucky will be called upon to join the public service reserve.

Several community labor boards have been created in the State, Dr. McVey said, which will have a double purpose—to recruit labor and to place labor in war industries. These boards' functions are somewhat similar in handling labor to the duties of the draft boards in handling men within the conscription age.

A cafeteria will be opened in the Y. W. C. A. rooms on Market street in Lexington, about Sept. 1. It is the first one to open for business and professional women and the general public as well, and is the first place of its kind where reading rooms and recreation rooms are found in connection with a cafeteria.

Miss Ethel Moorehouse, who has had charge of the Y. W. C. A. at Tacoma, Wash., for the past two years, has been engaged by the board of directors to have charge of the Lexington Cafeteria, and will arrive about September.

OUR NOMINEE

HON. OLLIE M. JAMES

The State Primary Saturday was a very quiet affair, less interest being manifested on both sides, than ever before known. In Montgomery county only one voter in every six participated. This was not strange on the Democratic side, as Hon. Ollie M. James virtually had no opposition, while on the Republican side Judge Bethurum and Dr. Bruner were both making active campaigns. If Senator James lives, and every one hopes he will, the race will be a very one-sided affair in November, as it is generally conceded that Senator James will sweep the State. He has stood loyally behind the President, his Americanism is one hundred per cent pure and his experience in the halls of Congress admirably equips him for superior service. On the other hand, neither of the Republican aspirants are men of more than ordinary ability. At this writing it looks like Dr. Bruner will be the Republican nominee, but returns from the mountains may change the result and return Judge Bethurum the winner, and both sides are claiming victory. The Montgomery county returns by precinct are as follows:

You will get your Moonlight

School supplies August 10, at the that night wherever possible. Those who find it inconvenient to begin at that time will begin Monday night

August 12th. This applies to white schools only. The Moonlight Schools for the colored people will begin on Monday night following the colored

Teachers' Institute. I hope that each teacher will make a personal canvass of the illiterates of her district previous to the opening of the Moonlight Schools. I further hope that no teacher will attempt to teach a Moonlight School who does not have the work at heart, for nothing can be accomplished in a heartless or half-hearted way. The hardest part of the battle will be with our own minds. The moment we decide that we are determined to do a thing, the battle is won. Of course, we will have many obstacles and discouragements, but we must be prepared to face them bravely. Our lines may bend, defeat, no doubt, will stare us in the face, but if we are armed with patience and determination, God being our helper, a most glorious victory will crown our efforts.

President Wilson said: "We are fighting to make the world safe for democracy." Let us make democracy safe back at home! The two greatest foes to the democracy of the world are Prussianism and Ignorance. The fight is now on against both. The winning of the war against Prussianism will not remove all the perils of democracy; for a democignorant citizenship.

UNCLE SAM'S ADVICE

ON CANNING

APPLES

Apples shrink more in canning than most fruits and for this reason should be blanched for one minute. Plunge them into a cold bath, then pack. Cover with a syrup made of 14 ounces of sugar to one gallon of water and process quart jars 12 minutes. Other syrups can be used in place of a part of the sugar usually required.

This method of canning apples is not economical because the apple is juicy and needs no water added. A better method, perhaps, is to make a sauce out of the apples. This may be done by steaming them until tender and passing them through a sieve. Allow one cup of sugar to each gallon of pulp. Reheat until the sugar is dissolved, pack hot in sterilized jars and process quart jars 12 minutes.

Meatless weeks are faced now by the German people. There is a day coming when they will be face to face with annihilation. Their kaiser invited it with their subjects indorsing the action of their monarch. The Temps of Paris is correct when it says, "So long as Germany remains what she is she excludes herself by her own acts from any society of nations which she cannot herself control after the Prussian manner." To try and convince her by argument of the necessity of giving up the religion of force and relinquishing the spirit of war is illusory." In other words, Germany has, by her own acts, declared herself an outlaw and pariah among nations, according to the French newspaper, and must, in the nature of things, remain so. If necessary the military machine of Germany is to be dynamited off the earth and the Germans who follow the kaiser are to share the fate of his empire.

Before the snow falls in 1919 Kaiser Bill will be on his knees begging for mercy. And who will put him there? Not warring France nor Britain, nor bleeding Belgium, but the boys who go from free America marching to the tune of "Dixie" and waving the "stars and stripes."

18 TO 45 AGE LIMITS IS PROPOSED DRAFT BILL

War Department recommendations for enlarging the army and for the extension of draft age limitations in order to provide new reservoirs of man power to back up the forces already at the front will be laid before Congress this week. Members of the two military committees have been recalled to Washington by the chairmen in order to expedite the bill.

Draft ages of from 18 to 45 years will be recommended to Congress in the bill embodying the war department's new man power program which will be introduced in both houses of Congress this week, and expedited by committees with a view to prompt consideration when regular sessions of the Senate and House are resumed late this month.

After formally announcing the new draft ages, Secretary Baker said all the possible combinations of age limits were carefully studied and it was found that in order to get the men into class one for the program proposed 18 to 45 was necessary. He said, however, that the bill, as recommended to Congress, will contain a provision authorizing the President to call men out of class one by classes according to ages, so that if it is found possible the men between 18 and 19 will be called out later than the older men who are found eligible to class one.

"Any suggestion to extend the draft ages is to produce in Class 1 an adequate number of men for the enlarged military program. If the ages are revised they will have to be either below 21 or above 31, or both. I think it will be both."

Chairman Dent was even more reticent, but said he was willing to go either up or down in extending age limits of the draft to win the war.

"My personal preference is to go up first," he added.

There are several features of the draft age discussion that stand out clearly. In presenting the original Selective Service Bill Secretary Baker and his advisers fixed 19 as the proper minimum, and Mr. Baker has said repeatedly since then that he has seen no reason to change his opinion in that regard. Congress ruled against taking men below the voting age of 21, however, and sought to make up the deficit by increasing the War Department's suggested maximum from 21 to 31, where it now stands.

The reluctance of many members of Congress to go lower than the 21 limit is still apparent, although there is evidence of a strong sentiment toward carrying the maximum up as high as 45. There is no doubt, however, that War Department officials would prefer to draw on the classes of 19 and 20-year-old youths to fill the ranks and see no decided military advantage to be gained from any considerable extension upward.

Secretary Baker has heretofore announced that his policy in recommending any change in draft ages would be to seek a sufficient number of men to meet the army's needs in such ages as would least disturb the economic situation at home. The bulk of the new forces, in his view, should be drawn from the youngest class of men, physically able to stand the strain of modern warfare.

From the purely army standpoint this has been a boys' war from the start. The quick recuperative powers of youth have been vitally necessary to the military machine under the conditions of modern warfare.

Older men are slower to recover and are, therefore, of more limited use to the army.

On the other hand, however, there are a great number of men who could be called out of the higher ages, even up to 45. A far greater proportion of the men between 31 and 45 have independent incomes than is true with men below 31, reducing the dependents factor for exemption to that extent.

As to the size of the army for which this increased Class 1 is necessary, no official has dropped a hint, with the exception of Gen.

Suppose it is true that a young woman has been indiscreet. What satisfaction is it to any worthy person to "talk about it?" Why revel in her unhappiness? Anyone who has been indiscreet is unfortunate. If you see a dog lying in the street with a broken leg, you wouldn't go and kick it. Then why should you kick a woman who has been wounded? Possibly it was her own fault. And possibly the dog was injured while out barking at a team in the street, where he had no business.

The How and Why of Caloric Pipeless Heating

The CALORIC is not a pipe furnace with the pipes left off. Neither is it an experiment, hastily put together to meet a demand. It is especially designed to heat homes, halls, churches, stores, factories, etc., more uniformly, economically and satisfactorily than they have ever been heated by other systems.

The CALORIC works thru Nature's own laws of circulation by air currents. Warm air rises. Cold air falls. Warm air and cold air cannot occupy the same space at the same time.

HERE'S THE SECRET

In the same volume that the warm air is pumped up into the house, an equal amount of cold air is taken from the room where it is heated, moistened by the vapor from the two gallon water pan, and then recirculated through the register. This continues as long as the fire burns.

Thus there is a constant circulation of properly moistened warm air. Just as running water purifies.

Whether your house is old or new, the CALORIC is easily installed in one day, without interruption of your present heating arrangement. No hole knocked in your walls, no cellar full of heat-wasting pipes. The CALORIC requires but one register and occupies little space. It burns and fuel, and uses hardly any charcoal. Makes houses one-third easier, as there is no muss from carrying in coal and carrying out ashes—no smoke, gas or soot. Eliminates fire danger and increases the value of your property.

LIBERTY LOAN DRIVE THREE WEEKS; OPENS SEPT. 28

The campaign for the fourth Liberty loan will open Saturday, September 28, and continue three weeks, ending October 19, it was announced last week by Secretary McAdoo.

In fixing three weeks as the length of the campaign for the fourth loan, instead of the four weeks as in previous loans, Treasury officials plan for a more intensive campaign. A shorter campaign, it was said, will also enable more business men to enlist as workers.

The date of the campaign was announced at this time in order to allow campaign organizations to prepare for the sale of bonds and to prevent the planning of other campaigns which might interfere with the floating of the loan.

Although official announcement has not been made, the amount of the loan will probably be $6,000,000,000, and the rate of interest which the bonds will bear 4 1/4 per cent. Should the treasury decide soon to place on the market certificates of indebtedness redeemable next June when taxes are paid, the amount of the loan may be reduced.

Secretary McAdoo has said that he does not contemplate making an extended speaking tour for the fourth loan as he has done in previous campaigns.

Officials in charge of the campaign have announced that a special appeal will be made to farmers, who subscribed liberally to the last loan.

USE CORN SYRUP, IS ADVICE OF FOOD EXPERT

Corn syrups with an equal amount of fruit juice, may be used instead of sugar in making jams and preserves.

This announcement was sent by Mrs. Maurice Gifford, State chairman of this work. Mrs. Gifford stated in her communication that this announcement of a substitute for sugar should be used if possible by all housewives. She further stated that since only two teaspoonsful of sugar are allowed to an individual for one day, this amount must cover the sugar for coffee, tea, desserts, pies, cakes and candies consumed by that individual.

Mrs. Gifford also said that this recommendation made to housewives to use corn syrup in making jam and preserves was that which was first given to housewives by Miss Mary E. Sweeny in her wartime cook book.

DR. BARROW NAMED LIEUTENANT COLONEL

Dr. David Barrow, head of Base Hospital Unit No. 48 has been promoted from a major to a lieutenant colonel in the Army Medical Reserve Corps, according to the Army and Navy Journal of July 27. The promotion was dated July 9.

The unit sailed for overseas July 5, and was reported as having landed safely about two weeks ago.

Dr. Barrow organized the unit last summer, and was commissioned a major. This rank he held until his recent promotion. When he organized the unit he had on his staff three other doctors with the rank of major, but these three had been in service longer than he, and therefore out ranked him. In order to give him supreme command, it was necessary to raise him to this rank. There have been very few cases where a reserve doctor has received such a commission.

THOUSANDS OF RESERVISTS ARE CALLED BY NAVY

In accordance with the pre-arranged plan for the navy to take over control of all shipping engaged in transporting troops and war supplies, orders have been issued by the Navy Department calling several thousand reservists into active duty. The number called it was stated officially, was limited only by the available facilities for handling them at the naval training stations.

After undergoing a few weeks' intensive training, the men will be organized in crews which will be utilized to replace the civilian sailors now manning the troop and supply ships, and for the vessels that are constantly being turned over to the navy under its own conservation program.

To hasten the process of transferring the military tonnage, heads of the various departmental bureaus have inaugurated a series of classes of the men on shore due in their organization to determine how many can be spared for service with ships or troops.

At marine corps headquarters orders have been issued to detach men whose place can be filled by a woman. The men will be sent to one of the corps' stations for duty with a unit.

Similarly Rear Admiral McGowan, paymaster general of the navy, has started a campaign for the reduction in the number of petty officers, men and enlisted men who are filling clerical positions in the bureaus of navigation, under Rear Admiral Palmer, was the first to undertake this step as a result of which several hundred men will be added to the force available for service at sea.

THE DECEITFUL GIRL

Why did the girl who said bitter tears

When she bade him goodbye at train.

Smilingly turn to the slacker and say I'll never see him again!

Why did she write to this soldier who's true?

And tell him she's true to him still Thinking the while of the slacker at home.

Who's afraid to get into the mill?

Why pause thus and deceive him so When she knew that his heart was set

On coming home soon, yes home and to her.

With nothing done to regret!

Why did she say she was waiting for him

And longing to see him once more When at the time she was waiting to greet

The slacker there at the door!

Why did she send him away over there

With a heart so broken and sore He wonders now what he's fighting for Since there is nothing at home any more.

Why did she turn to the slacker instead

And suddenly forever more

Wasn't here some back after the war

Why did she run his fish off And his hope of an eternal home

Why make him wait to cross the line And long for the end to come?

Will be glad for his need and in the far off battles' whirl

Is she an angel who's here from above Or is she really a girl?

She can never, no never be happy with him

The slacker who knows he should be

In France, now fighting for freedom and right

LOSS THAT SPELLED TRAGEDY

No Wonder Daniel Was Embarrassed Over Temporary Parting From Necessary Article...

For two hours it was noticed that she sat, evidently much worried, in the foyer of a New York hotel. Occasionally she half rose as if to depart, and then biting her lips, she would sink back in her seat on the circular divan about the palms. When it had about been decided to send some one with a polite query as to whether she needed aid she rose and came determinedly to the desk. The color was high in her cheeks and she twisted her fox furs nervously in her hands. She was very young and much embarrassed. "Please, I have lost something," she said. "Could I see the person who has charge of that department?" "Why, certainly," said the clerk. "What did you lose?" The girl blushed and looked down. "It—it was a garter," she blurted out. "A new one I got for Christmas." "What kind was it?" asked the impertinent clerk. "A—round one." "But what was its color?" "Oh, it had an amethyst setting and was blue silk." The clerk called the Lost and Found department. Yes, a garter had been found. It was of blue silk. It had an amethyst setting. In a few minutes it was in the young woman's hands. "Oh—oh, thank you," she breathed, and fairly flew out the door to the street.

TURNING TO PEAT FOR FUEL

The fuel situation has directed attention to the possibility of burning peat, of which there are large areas throughout the United States and Canada, especially in regions remote from coal fields. The best development along this line is for industrial fuel rather than domestic purposes. Peat is well adapted for use in gas producers or for burning in powdered form. It must be collected, dried and powdered by machinery, and the main problem is drying without the use of artificial heat except such as may be available from other processes. In its natural state peat contains about 90 per cent water. The Canadian government has demonstrated the value of peat in gas producers for power and other purposes, while powdered peat has been used for some time in Europe with high efficiency. It is estimated that the cost of a ton of dried peat in this country will range from $3.50 to $4 in quantities of 5,000 tons, making it worth investigation as power fuel where coal costs $8 a ton or more.

Visitor in Arkansas Deceived by Spectral Appearance of the Second Quadruped.

"Les," said the returned pilgrim the other day, "Arkansas certainly lives up to its reputation for lean and lanky creatures.

"Last week I was riding along a dusty road, when I came to a cabin set in a clearing. A lean, bony man sat out in front, smoking a corncob and gazing at invisible things. Two or three long-legged, skinny fowls peeked listlessly about the yard and occasionally a pig built like a pumpkin seed slid between the pickets and went under the house to lie down in the shade.

"Out in the dusty road a lean, rickety dog walked around and around, bristles up, apparently growling at his shadow.

"I went in and got a drink of water. Looking back I saw the dog still going through his peculiar maneuvers.

"Say, I said to the native, 'what's the matter with your dog—going mad?'

"The old man looked over that way.

"Don't see nothin' wrong with him," he said.

"But, says I, look at him! He walks around and around, growling at his shadow."

"The native looked indifferently at a crawling grasshopper and lost interest again.

WHEN NEW ENGLAND WALKED.

As to going anywhere in colonial days this generation can form slight conception of the difficulties of travel or of the strength of the travelers. Horses were not numerous and carriages were few indeed. To make a journey every one walked. The first stage between Boston and Portsmouth, N. H., was put on in 1761. It was drawn by two horses, carried three passengers, was two days going and two coming and made but one trip a week. One Mettling, a baker in Portsmouth at that period, used to walk the 66 miles to Boston in one day, buy his flour and ship it by coaster to his home, and then walk back to Portsmouth the next day, according to Adams' history of Portsmouth. Mettling continued this practice until he was eighty years old.

ANSWER, YES.

When a New York reporter asked John D. Rockefeller, in New York the other day, if it were true that he was worth only $900,000,000, Mr. Rockefeller smiled and parried the question in his usual way.

"Be economical, young man," he said. "Work and save. Then you'll be richer some day than I am, maybe."

"Prosperity," Mr. Rockefeller continued—"prosperity is said to have ruined many a man. But, after all, my dear young friend, don't you think it must be pleasanter to be ruined by prosperity than by adversity?"

NATURAL RESULT.

"What makes that young man over there look so seedy?"

"I guess it is because he's been sowing his wild oats."

HER HEIR.

"Mrs. Jinks gave a bald excuse for going home so early?"

"What was it?"

"Her baby."

MEN KNOW AND TRUST HIM

Qualities of General Foch That Have Made Him Acclaimed as a Great Leader.

Major Hequin of the French general staff draws a character portrait of General Foch in the New Republic:

"By the strength and uprightness of his character, as well as by his great intelligence and his military science, Foch is the accomplished type of a chief—a chief modest and simple, who shows himself only in the serious hours, when responsibilities crush others, and who then takes them with a resolution, an energy and a serenity which astound everyone.

"Essentially a definite person, once in action he retains only positive facts upon which he will build his plans. This is the reason for his requiring great clearness in all reports verbal or written; he never allows two ideas to be given him at the same time. If some one commits this error a gesture, well known to his staff, which seems to push aside any second thought, is invariably accompanied by the brief remark, 'I don't follow you any longer,' or 'That is ancient history—go on,' when it refers to facts without any bearing on the decision to be taken."

"During the execution, even more than in the preparation, he admits neither delay nor carelessness, and his natural kindness stops as soon as the country's interests are at stake."

DATE TO BE REMEMBERED

John Paul Jones, American Naval Hero, Was Born in Scotland on July 6, 1747.

John Paul Jones, famous naval officer in the American Revolution, was born in Scotland July 6, 1747. His name was originally John Paul, the Jones being added subsequently for an unknown reason. After being given a number of commands, he was then transferred to the Ranger, upon which, it is said, the Stars and Stripes was hoisted for the first time. On the evening of September 23, 1779, Jones engaged the Serapis in battle, and after three hours' desperate fighting, during which the Serapis and the Bon Homme Richard were lashed together, the former surrendered. For this victory, Jones was presented by Louis XVI with a gold-mounted sword and presented with the Order of Military Merit. Congress voted him a gold medal and passed commendatory resolutions and proposed to create for him the rank of rear admiral. Jones died in 1792, and for a long time his burial place was unknown, being finally discovered in the old St. Louis cemetery, Paris, the remains being removed to Annapolis, Md.

WORTH REMEMBERING.

The safest and most convenient way of firing charges in blasting is by using the electric spark, and blasting machines for generating the required spark are in general use wherever blasting operations are carried on.

Farmers, who often have occasion to do blasting of stumps, rocks, etc., but not often enough to justify the expense of purchasing a blasting machine, will be interested in the suggestion offered by Mr. W. A. Saunders, New Hampshire, who made shift to fire a circuit of five charges with a spark obtained from a dry-cell battery of his automobile, when no blasting machine was available on a certain occasion.

This is a handy wrinkle to be acquainted with on occasion, suggests Popular Science Monthly.

SLACKER OR PROFITEER?

Ted—Why do you tell me that he's making love to Tom's girl while the poor fellow is over in the trenches?

Ned—I was anxious to know what you think of him; whether you'd call him a slacker or a profiteer?—The Spur.

AND SHOVEL.

Rookie (to officer)—Sir, I understand we may take our choice of flying or staying on the ground.

Officer—Yes, you may have your pick.

ITS SORT.

"I have been reading reports about irrigation problems and droughts."

"Dear me! Isn't that awfully dry reading?"

TRAINED BOTH TO SERVICE

Great Irishman's Sense of Citizenship Caused Him to Acquire Use of His "Second Arm."

Padraic Colum describes A. E. (George Russell), the Irish leader as the only man in history ever to make a reputation as a great writer through articles printed in a farm journal, in the New Republic. He says:

"A. E." indeed, presents the unusual spectacle of a two-armed worker. Most of the world's workers are one-armed; they grasp the sword or the portfolio, the pen, the brush or the chisel with one hand, and the other, because it has been trained to no service, hangs lame and limp. But A. E. is two-armed; with one hand he paints, writes poems and sketches the outlines of a philosophy, vast, cosmic and inclusive, and with the other he leads or pushes a farmer or an artisan toward the co-operative commonwealth.

His Socratic sense of citizenship forced him to train his second arm. "My temperament," he says in a preface to one of his books, "would only allow me to be happy when I was working at art. My conscience would not let me have peace unless I worked with other Irishmen at the reconstruction of Irish life."

It is fortunate, indeed, for Ireland that this remarkable son of hers should have had such sense of citizenship as led him to train both his hands.

THE SUMMER GIRL

She loves us one and all in turn; Each has his week or two, in fine. She hastens; she has no time to burn, For she is going down the line.

USE BY-PRODUCT METALS.

Selenium and tellurium are by-products in the electro-refining of copper.

Tellurium is used as a component part of certain high resistant alloys, for coloring glass and porcelain and in a limited amount in medicine. Selenium, on account of its conductivity varying with light, has peculiar electrical properties. It is 500 times as good a conductor under the influence of light as in the dark, and this property has led to extensive experimenting to develop commercial uses, such as lighting of gas buoys at sea, transmitting pictures by telegraph, for wireless telephony along a beam of light.

Farmers, who often have occasion to do blasting of stumps, rocks, etc., but not often enough to justify the expense of purchasing a blasting machine, will be interested in the suggestion offered by Mr. W. A. Saunders, New Hampshire, who made shift to fire a circuit of five charges with a spark obtained from a dry-cell battery of his automobile, when no blasting machine was available on a certain occasion.

The principal use at present, however, is in the glass industry and in photographic work. Ruritan Copper works, Perth Amboy, N. J., is one of the largest producers of these metals.

SHOCKED HER.

"And why did you leave your last place?" an English lady asked of an applicant for housework.

"Well, mum, it was like this," replied the woman. "One day missus to me: 'Caroline,' she says, 'get a wet cloth and give the old master a wipe over,' she says, so I gave her notice on the spot."—Boston Evening Transcript.

IN GOLF LANGUAGE.

"I see where a soldier who wasn't much of a soldier when it came to saluting his superior officers and drilling went 'over the top' and proved himself every inch a hero."

"I dare say a great many of our boys are like that," said the golf player, thoughtfully. "They show rather poor form in the preliminaries and are strong in the finals."

PETE WAS HIDING SOMETHING.

Patience—Saw Peggy and Pete at the movies last night.

Patrice—And was Peggy wearing that summer fur hat?

"I couldn't really see."

"Too dark?"

"No, not that; Pete's arm was in the way."

WHO WAS GOING TO BE BOSS

Ship's Officer, Quickly Settled Argument Arising Between Naval Ensign and Army Captain.

A lively incident brought to the bridge by naval-reserve men aboard our ship illustrates "the eternal triangle" at sea that has as various manifestations as the more generally known "sex" triangle of literature and home life, Nelson Collins writes in the Century Magazine.

A rather self-conscious American army captain in the course of smoking-room discussions had declared he meant to take command of any lifeboat he entered in the event of the ship sinking. He was something—or other if he would submit to the orders of any blamed ensign in the naval reserve. An ensign reminded him that he was at sea and that a sailor rules the waves. The captain still insisted that army captains never, never should be slaves to navy ensigns. They carried their heated discussion of it out to the deck, and ran into a ship's officer headed leisurely aft. He listened while they submitted the point to him.

"Of course you gentlemen remember that you are on a merchant ship," the officer summed the matter up finally, "and that passengers"—he looked with quiet keenness at both the ensign and the army captain, though the keenness dwelt longest on the captain's flushed face—"that passengers await orders before entering a boat, and have only one duty after they are in it, to sit and keep perfectly quiet. The ship's officer, the ship's quartermaster, or the ship's able-bodied sailor who may be in charge of the boat will look after it, gentlemen. What's all the argument about?"

EARTH HAD MANY "ICE AGES"

Scientists Claim to Have Proved That Glacial Periods Have Been Common in Its History.

One often hears of "the glacial period" or "the ice age" of the earth, but, strictly speaking, this expression is not correct. It is now established beyond all reasonable doubt that this planet has experienced not one but a great many glacial periods, says Popular Science Monthly. Evidence has been found which proves that the latest or Pleistocene glacial epoch had several important subdivisions and that all of the present continents have experienced glacial epochs at different ages. Great ice sheets were formed at different periods back to the Proterozoic age; that is, the age of the oldest known sedimentary rocks, a great many millions of years ago. One of the most recent discoveries of old glacial deposits was made by Prof. W. W. Atwood of the United States geological survey near Ridgway, in southwest Colorado. These deposits were found beneath tertiary lavas of the San Juan mountains and resting upon Upper Cretaceous beds. They have, it is believed, been formed in early Eocene times.

HOME FIRES.

There's a bright-eyed, red-haired patriot, age ten, who sells papers along Washington street. Because of his politeness he has made a number of patrons have more than a passing interest in him.

"Do you always sell all your papers?" inquired a patron the other day.

"Nope, not always," was the answer. "Sometimes have one or two left."

"What do you do then?"

"Oh, I take them to mother to keep the home fires burning."—Indianapolis News.

EVEN THE KAISER.

Sammie—And they say the kaiser is patriotic.

Tommie—No; really?
